11:00 AM – 11:20 AM	Faculty Lecture Title: Philosophical Thought Experiments: Questions and Puzzles Faculty: Professor Bill Fitzpatrick Department: Philosophy/Linguistics	In this session, we'll look together at how philosophers use thought experiments (sometimes realistic, sometimes very strange) to explore philosophical questions, often by posing puzzles that challenge us to think more deeply about the underlying issues. You'll be invited to offer your own thoughts on two or three thought experiments and to think about the lessons they suggest. We'll end with one or two logic puzzles to think about.	Hawkins Carlson Room, Rush Rhees Library
11:00 AM – 1:30 PM	Lunch	Use your swipe card for a meal at either Danforth or Douglass Dining Halls.	Danforth Dining Hall, Susan B. Anthony Hall Douglass Dining Hall, Douglass Commons

11:25 AM – 11:45 AM	Faculty Lecture Title: Language Change: Constant, Inevitable, and Often Unpredictable Faculty: Professor Maya Abtahian Department: Linguistics	In this session I will introduce the participants to some of what we know about language change, including the types of changes that occur in languages and how we can use our knowledge of typical paths of change to reconstruct some of those changes in reverse. We will also talk about what aspects of language change are predictable and what are unpredictable, using modern examples of dialect variation to illustrate these.	Hawkins Carlson Room, Rush Rhees Library
12:00 PM – 12:45 PM	Faculty Lecture Title: Big Questions and Bigger Decisions: A Talk About Your College, Career, and Life Journey Faculty: Professor Zachary Roth Department: Business	In this talk, we will explore the "big college questions" within the larger context of "big career and life decisions" (to pass, pivot, or persevere at key moments). I will also share my own story (one that starts in Alaska with a simple video game programming book and ends with me living and teaching here in Rochester) as an example of how these big questions and decisions can impact one's college, career, and life journey.	Hawkins Carlson Room, Rush Rhees Library
